NEW YORK FASHIONS

FALL WRAPS

The designs in wool and silk costumes provide for some kind of outside wrap of the same materials, which may be worn later in the season, and at no time has fashion so ... considered every type of face and form. With the costumes, including over skirts or upper drapery, sacques and jackets of various lengths are shown, none however, being very short; while every possible variety of cut and trimming are displayed.

Some costumes have long plain jackets very little trimmed, and others have silk jackets in one collar, which may be worn with any dress that harmonizes.

SILK CLOAKS AND SACQUES

Few long sleeveless circulars will be worn, but a beautiful wrap answering the same purpose is made with four seams, the back slightly gored in to cling to the figure; the side seams from the neck down the shoulder curving gracefully, while long narrow sleeves are set in low enough down to give good effect to a stout figure. This wrap will be made up in Sicilliennes and plain or repped silks; armures and matelasses being also fashionable for such garments; fringes and heavy galloons will be used for trimming until the winter season, when furs will be employed. Long plain sacques of silk or the repped and figured wools will be worn until late in the season, and, if made with regard for the figure, are becoming to nearly every one.

CASHMERE WRAPS

The prettiest pale-hued cashmeres introduced last season are coming into special favor for evening wraps. Four yards will make a mantelet, and the designs are various, crossed pieces in front, one end longer than the other, and which may be thrown over the shoulder, diagonal seams—all such ideas find their way, with many others, into these garments, and the fanciful galloons form a beautiful trimming.

BLACK SILKS AND VELVETS

It has become an established fact in the feminine mind that no wardrobe is complete without a costume of black silk, but this season decided novelties appear. Fads which ruled supreme a year ago have vanished, and a pretty combination of the antique and modern is the result. The leading principle seems to be that no plain black silk costumes will be worn. Unique ideas for these dresses are courted. While simplicity will be found with richness in material, all manner of expensive ... govern the designs employed by leading houses. Jet, black, and ... as trimmings, while the most costly and beautiful velvet and satin galloons are introduced.

COSTUMES

The primary requisite in a black silk costume is a design which will be found generally useful. Of all dresses, it is one to be worn on various and contrary occasions, and it is ... be too limited to admit of more than one black silk, reference to street wear ... and house wear should be the first consideration.

For constant wear the simple princess form may be used as a house dress, and with some slight modifications, for street wear as well. Cut the back breadth in plain princess form, the front in long apron piece, with wide pleated flounce below, and the dress serves admirably both purposes, and, for such a costume has the advantage of taking very little material—sixteen to eighteen yards of twenty two or twenty-four inch silk being ample. Four to five yards will make a sacque, and such a one may be used with a single lining in the fall, and a fur lining in midwinter. The closely pleated back breadths have a very elegant appearance in black silk costumes, and are now left more flowing than before.

FABRICS

Face bonnet strings and scarfs are going out of favor. Narrow silk and satin ribbons taking their place. These may be tied in a small bow at the left side.

Pure white linen collars and cuffs will be worn in street and house costumes, the cuffs wider and in some instances turned back all around.

Belts will be worn with street costumes during the fall.

The nomenclature of mountains, lakes, rivers, etc., affords a curious study. The traveller in every part of the world finds himself involuntarily puzzling over the origin of names which designate notable features of the landscape. Perhaps nowhere does the confused jumble of names strike one more forcibly than among the many peaks of the White Mountains, whose numerous groups cover an area of over twelve hundred miles in the State of New Hampshire. The Main range received, according to tradition, various poetical names from the Indians. Chrystal Hills the higher peaks were called by an explorer more than two centuries ago, but soon afterward the present appellation was fixed upon them by sailors, who far off the coast, saw their snowy heads lifted against the blue sky. The Franconia range derives its name from the town in which the principal peaks occur. Many of the mountains are named from early settlers and hunters, as Willey, Crawford, Carter; others, like Campton, Stratford, etc., bear the names of the townships in which they are located; distinguished statesmen are honored in Mounts Washington, Adams, Jefferson, Franklin, Lincoln, and others, some simple incident or old legend gave rise to other names, as Deception, Milton, Pilot; certain peaks are christened after popular landlords, railroad officials, mountain explorers, famous foreign mountains, while Rattlesnake, Deer, Wild-Cat, Iron, Bilberry, Cherry, Sheep, and a multitude of similar names indicate that the memory of some insignificant circumstance was intended to be perpetuated. Among the peaks of the White Mountain ranges, are many whose names commemorate some physical peculiarity—a mode of bestowing titles which, in general, is much approved. Of this class are the Haystacks, the Twins, Double Head, Profile, Pripyramid, Sugar-Loaf, Sandwich Dome, Crescent, and others. Yet one instinctively feels that a fine peak is degraded by such an appellation as Black Snouts, and can not but wish for such a revision of nomenclature as would cause noble mountains to bear noble names. Perhaps the resonant Indian names seem, after all, the most fitting of any borne by the numerous peaks in New Hampshire, as being the natural outgrowth of a rudely poetic age—Ossipee, Kearsarge, Woostaboo, Chocorua, Tecumseh, Pemigewasset, Waterwadon. Many of these certainly have a musical ring.

According to the Court Journal, a new device in regard to "flowers" has just come into use in Paris. It is the wearing of a small bunch of natural flowers on the shoe, in place of the lace and ribbon rosettes of a few seasons ago. The favorites are primroses, yellow on the shoe ...

on the other, or mixed on both, violets are much worn, and daisies are just "coming in."

Some ingenious Frenchman has invented a match box which contains hidden away in its interior a little model of a horizontal bar, with a Lilliputian figure attached. On being drawn out and erected on one end of the match-box, the little acrobat can be made to go through the various gymnastic feats connected with revolving over the bar. Why does not somebody invent a match box with a little acrobat that can strike a match and light the gas?

There is more to learn about pouring out tea and coffee than most ladies are willing to believe. If the ... at the table, which is for the best way, they require experience, judgment and exactness, if they be brought on the table ready made it still requires judgment to apportion them that they shall prove sufficient in quantity for the family party and that the older members shall have the stronger cups. Often persons pouring out tea, who not being at all aware that the first cup is the weakest, and that the tea grows stronger as you proceed, bestows the poorest cup on the greatest stranger and give the very youngest member of the family, the strongest, who should have been without. Where several cups of equal strength are wanted you should pour a little into each, and then go back, inverting the order as you fill them up and the strength will be proportioned properly. This is so well understood in England that an experienced pourer of tea waits till all the cups are returned to her before she fills any a second time, that all may share alike.—H. ...keeper.

THE ORIGIN OF THE SURRENDER POLICY

Individuals and newspapers are putting forward just now so many distinct and fantastic statements as to the origin of the so-called "South ern Policy," that it seems worth while to refresh the public memory as to facts that are people seem to think already forgotten. The President only of other days politically attributed the origin of the policy to the impression made upon his mind by the remembrance—evidently subsequent to his 5th of November speech—of an incident in the battle of Cedar Mountain the relevancy of which we have not been able to clearly comprehend. Mr. Hoar, the other day said the policy was adopted because the refusal of the Democrat House to support the Army rendered the President's action inevitable. A day or two before that the Press from which I declared that the policy was not adopted from necessity but because it was right. The name of Stanley Matthews has been very intimately associated with the origin of the policy but a few days ago he himself had nothing to do with it and declared that the President adopted it voluntarily and solely as a matter of high public duty.

It is not but that the great American people permit their recollections of political events to become rapidly obliterated by the whirl of events and that Rip Van Winkle like they thus subsequently study their knowledge and intelligence as to occurrences six months remote. On no other hypothesis can we account for the remarkable and varied statements concerning the origin of the southern policy which now put forth in the face of there recorded facts which disclose the truth in writing of the whole transaction. Those facts of record which were published without contradiction or contradiction we reproduce today and without any comment simply ask the reader who will look at things as they are, to read the history of the negotiations which led to the abandonment of the legal State Government of Louisiana and South Carolina.

The Boston Journal of Thursday in an effort seeking to convince Republicans of the justice of the policy by setting there objections give to the President and Wade Hampton on their tour through the South remarked as follows

> We know that there are those who still doubt the sincerity of Governor Hayes's pacific declaration of two days previous and some think that their purpose was to impose upon the President and the country. The liberty appropriated by the effort to bring peace to the country and their warm pledges to the cooperation. The number of such however is small and is decreasing every day. It is encouraging to find the leaders of the Republican party coming to the wisdom of the President's course toward the South and the earnestness with which the people of the states of Border States receive the President and at which every evidence is offered that the warmest of their pledges to him with the work of conciliation are forthcoming. Those who still doubt the policy of the President must be left to the logic of the whole transaction.

We beg to say that if there were the slightest doubt on the subject with the Southern Democrats and Bulldozers as to that policy of a Republican President which gives them no check to the privilege of trampling down loyal principles and establishing a solid South. But to demonstrate to them anything more than it is we do not believe and moreover while the Southerners applaud the President as he plays his cards in the game of their own leader with having compelled that to his course by exercising the fulfillment of the pledges declared and received his consideration for permitting the Democrats to be declared.

The Journal objects to remembering facts so remote as those of six months ago perhaps it will consider the statement of the publicly made by the leading Democratic paper of the South the Times of the New Orleans Picayune in an interview with the President in Washington only a few weeks ago which was proclaimed by telegraph widely to the country, to both. Since his return he has thought President Hayes too pronounced in claiming per onal credit for the conciliatory policy and has frequently asserted its Southern origin. On the 15th inst. the Picayune explicitly declared

> The secret history of the South ern policy is known to all students of contemporary history. It is based entirely upon the promises which Mr Hayes' friends made to the Southern Democrats in Congress in order to avert the filibustering which there intended to interrupt the count and secure the defeat of Mr Hayes. The promises were executed in such a shape that their fulfillment becomes a matter of necessity and not of choice.

This would seem positive enough as an assertion, but the editor evidently felt that he had not been sufficiently pointed and on the next day, the 16th the Picayune added the following significant words

> If the world comes to take it for granted that we have President Hayes [illegible] simply because he promised [illegible] which might [illegible] then secession shall be read.

Surely that is a declaration which can hardly be ignored coming as it does from the newspaper exponent of the very class of people who by the President's policy have gained control of Louisiana.—It seems to us that the argument that the assembly of street crowds to listen to the Presidents and Wade Hampton's glorifications of "Home Rule" as exemplified in South Carolina and Louisiana. It directly challenges contradiction, and until such utterances and the testimony of Brown Ellis Lamar and the letters signed by Matthews and Foster meet some attempt at explanation, common sense, will point to but one conclusion as to the origin of the Surrender policy

In compliance with the desire and advice of numerous friends in different parts of the State Henry Lord, Esq Representative-elect from this city will be a candidate for the Speakership in the next House Mr Lord is a young man of excellent character and fine abilities, which have already been recognized in his election to and efficient discharge of the duties of President of the Common Council of Bangor and his re-election to the Legislature, where last year he proved a trustworthy and useful member. His decision to be a candidate has been influenced by strongly favorable expressions from prominent members-elect in various counties, and he enters the field with gratifying assurances of support. The other gentlemen who have been named as candidates are Representatives-elect Pillsbury, of Lewiston, Weeks, of Augusta, and Kimball of Rockland.

The Stanley Matthews Bargain.

MATTHEWS' ASTOUNDING EFFRONTERY.

DENIAL IN FACE OF THE RECORD.

A REVIEW OF THE FACTS.

The Origin of the Southern Policy.

MATTHEWS BRAZEN FACED DENIAL

A Cincinnati despatch of Sept 18 gives report of a speech made by Stanley Matthews at Dayton in which he made the following astonishing reply to Gen Tom Ewing, reference to the Matthews Foster, Gordon Brown bargain which form the basis of the Southern Policy

"It is said by General Ewing that, in a certain critical stage of the proceedings of the Presidential count, in spite of all judicial decision of the judicial body to which all questions connected with it had been referred I appealed to the President and with the fear of deterring certain Democrats who otherwise would have joined with others of the party in preventing the final action of the election that R B Hayes is President that then and there with these words I made in the name and on the behalf of the present President of the United States [illegible] and dishonor to the flag by which he was permitted to be declared and inaugurated President upon the promise as a consideration, that when it was ended he would withdraw the troops from Louisiana and South Carolina, and so pronounced this letter the State Government represented by Wade Hampton, and in the former the State Government represented by General Nicholls to be established in the recognized Governments of the respective States. The gentleman who so forces to particularize that this [illegible] was anything. Now I tend to make no denial to cover it in every form—written verbal implied express all collateral facts—in every possible form. I say unreservedly that those are false that it is not right to understand President Hayes of his honorable and exact connections, and originating the policy with himself certainly. It was born of his own good sense and known good heart."

THE HISTORY OF THE BARGAIN—STATEMENT OF JOHN YOUNG BROWN

As it would seem that Matthews must have relied upon belief that the exact which create so much excitement at the time have passed from the public memory, published excellent points of the history of that intrigue was made public by the parties to the transaction. The first hints of the real tenor of such a compact having been vehemently denied by journals friendly to the Administration, John Young Brown of Kentucky, published the following statement in the Louisville Courier Journal of March 21

> Believing I publish herewith letters of Hon Charles Foster and Hon Stanley Matthews addressed to the Hon John B. Gordon of myself. Their communications in their original are to be found as follows [illegible] with [illegible] born recited [illegible] from the House of Reps to the Senate Chamber to my distinguished friend Gen Gordon [illegible] and [illegible] Hayes and [illegible] I will [illegible] I wanted neither a few with Hon Charles Foster in which I desired specifically [illegible] Gordon [illegible] Gordon what I intended to say to Foster and he did [illegible] would with pleasure mean [illegible] me. We found Mr. Foster in the room of the Committee on Appropriations [illegible] and [illegible] Mr Foster [illegible] view I told Mr Foster I had no knowledge [illegible] that all [illegible] duty motive [illegible] Foster [illegible] advice to the [illegible] Democratic caucus that I would [illegible] vote I were the only man from the South to lose, that such vote was approved by my judgment that I felt under an [illegible] honor to stand by the result, bitter as I was feeling that the State [illegible] was not [illegible] to the Electoral Bill but to the majority of the Commission in which we had agreed to [illegible] I told him I had received telegraphs and letters from home from cherished and trusted friends, containing the most emphatic remonstrance against my course both with reference to the [illegible] question. If I [illegible] Speaker [illegible] every vote in my district and should be sent to me resigning me to support all [illegible] every motion as it would not be [illegible] for me to [illegible] my party so

BROWN THE PLAN TO DEFEAT THE COUNT IF HAYES INTENDED TO SUSTAIN PACKARD AND CHAMBERLAIN

> I will further state to him that there was but one thing which would change my mind that was if I thought that I was trying to accomplish the count which was fraudulent and [illegible] in favor of Mr Hayes I would be willing directly or indirectly, to perpetuate the usurpations of Packard and Chamberlain in the States of Louisiana and South Carolina, I would [illegible] rather [illegible] my very utmost to defeat the execution of this bill, regardless of the consequences calamitous to the country as I believed they would be. I furthermore told him that if I changed my position I knew of several prominent gentlemen who would join me. If at that critical hour when the daily and nightly scenes surpassing by far in wicked excitement and violence anything ever witnessed in the legislative history of the country, the line of the Democrats who were not going to execute the law should be broken, it would result in a stampede among them and Mr Hayes would no more be the President than he (Foster) would

WRITTEN ASSURANCE, OF THE POLICY DEMANDED

Mr Foster said he believed that I have the highest respect for Charles Foster, I but I told him that it was in my power to do, and I told him that if he would put in writing in like that had brought me to him. He represented the district of Mr Hayes. He had just made a manly and patriotic speech in which he had said that under Hayes the flag should float over the States, not Provinces over freemen not subjects. I referred to this speech and told him I had come to request of him written assurances that if Hayes was inaugurated he would restore home rule to the States of Louisiana and South Carolina, that the people of these States should control their own affairs in their own way, is free from any interference by the Federal authorities as the State of Ohio

> This conversation was long and earnest. I told Mr Foster I wanted to make no bargain, no agreements, that I scorned the thought of it that I had declined a re-election to Congress, was voluntarily withdrawing from political life, wanted no office that a President could give me, and that my object was unselfish, but desired a written assurance from him that the policy of Mr Hayes would be as indicated, and from him specially by reason of his very intimate relations with Mr Hayes.

FOSTER PROMISES THE WRITTEN PLEDGES

> His reply to all this was frank full, earnest and satisfactory to my friend, General Gordon and myself. Indeed, Mr. Foster said he had in his pocket a letter [illegible] received from Mr Hayes, thanking him for the speech to which I alluded, and endorsing it. He offered this letter to General Gordon and myself to read, but we declined it. He agreed to give me the desired letter, and said he would also request Hon Stanley Matthews to sign it. He promised to meet me that night at my rooms. He came about midnight. With General Gordon and myself he had that evening procured a meeting of some gentlemen from Louisiana and South Carolina at Wormley's Hotel, at which, also, Hon. Henry Watterson was present, and at the conclusion of the conference these gentlemen expressed great satisfaction at what had been said to them. On leaving [illegible] remarked that I should have the letter the next morning.

FOSTER DELIVERS THE LETTERS.

> Next day he came to my desk in the House of Representatives and handed me an unsealed letter. I read it, took my pen and erased one paragraph, and told him that it could be made stronger and fuller, but that from the honorable way who gave Senator [illegible] Foster, Stanley and Chief Justice Carter of the District [illegible] Court, and Representatives Foster and Garfield. After some [illegible] conference, Judge Matthews asked me for an expression of my opinion as to the desires and wishes of the Southern States and in reference thereto our position and determination with regard to the electoral count. I stated to him and the gentlemen present, at some length our unalterable determination to secure at all hazards the governments of Nicholls and Hampton our earnest desire for the restoration of the right of self government and our great fear that Mr Hayes if inaugurated President would use the troops for the purpose of [illegible] Packard and Chamberlain and that I was [illegible] that my colleagues in Congress as well as many Democratic Representatives were [illegible] preventing the consummation of the count

MATTHEWS AS THE SPOKESMAN OF HAYES

> Judge Matthews then entered into a lengthy and exhaustive review of the Southern question. He declared that he was the intimate friend, personal and political of Governor Hayes; that he was intimately acquainted with the views of the Southern question; that Governor Hayes believed that the time had come for the maintenance of State Governments with troops that he desired that the States of South Carolina and Louisiana should have peaceable home rule and an honest and stable Government based upon the consent of the people interested in good government, that he was tired of the strife, misrule and dishonest Governments and Governmental officials who had plundered the States that he desired also to obliterate the color line in politics, as only in that way could the rights of the colored race be perfectly protected. He then referred to the letter of acceptance of Governor Hayes and to the speech of the Hon. Charles Foster, of the 20th of February and declared that Governor Hayes if inaugurated President, would pursue the policy he had indicated. Then an autograph letter was shown me from Governor Hayes to Charles Foster, thanking the latter for his speech in the House of Representatives and declaring that if inaugurated President he would carry out towards the South the policy of peace and home rule as he (Foster) understood

FOSTER CAN'T SEE HOW HAYES CAN REPUDIATE PACKARD

> I then told Mr Matthews that his views as I could gather them from the letter attributed to Governor Hayes were most gratifying to us, but he could to me a good deal of practical difficulty in carrying out those views. I told him for instance with regard to [illegible] that the people who had voted for Hayes had voted for Packard, and the friends of Mr Hayes were the supporters of Nicholls, that the Returning Board which had [illegible] summoned to award the vote of Louisiana to Hayes had awarded also a majority to Packard and that I did not see how Mr Hayes could consistently sustain Nicholls under the circumstances

MATTHEWS OUTLINES THE ABANDONMENT POLICY

> He replied very quickly "I can see very clearly how Nicholls could be sustained I do not [illegible] to speak absolutely for Governor Hayes but my policy would be to obtain from Nicholls as much as that the people would be entitled to no more protection on account of political offences, life, liberty and property guaranteed to all, then withdraw the troops. Your people would then [illegible] pass the [illegible] to Nicholls will [illegible] ernment would grow firmly in authority and Packard would starve to death for [illegible] to appoint his government, and that should Packard [illegible] necessary for the President to recognize [illegible] ment in that State he would find [illegible] government in the State—that of Nicholls—in [illegible] with no expense [illegible] and he would accept the facts and recognize it."

HAYES'S LETTER TO ELLIS

WASHINGTON, Feb 20, 1877

> My Dear Ellis: I have just received from a source entitled to authority which I will give you with it that Foster said to a gentleman very intimate that the speech which he made today and which so gratified me was made after consultation with Matthews, Mr. Hayes' brother in law, and Matthews told him and urged him to say so strongly that Hayes would have both to do or else [illegible] so. He would but he was afraid to take too much on himself to say that, but Matthews reiterated his desire that Foster should say it plainly, and further said that if I were to speak I should say it because it is the truth. Foster further said that he did not see the mode by which Hayes could accomplish the practical recognition of Nicholls as Governor to which my information pointed.
> Mr. Ellis ask Nicholls, if I withdraw the armed [illegible] will you assure me that you will establish your government by bloodshed and if only recognized as such Nicholls makes the pledge let him withdraw them." Now Ellis this is the first [illegible] I have ever heard as coming from Hayes directly or indirectly that is worth looking upon by any Southern man. Would not want to [illegible] but we do want to get our States and our people free from the carpet-bag government. Ought you not, if an available opportunity offers you to serve your people, to spring forward at once and see if you can't do [illegible] your State. I think you should at once see Stanley Matthews and ask him if Hayes will give you some assurance that he will not maintain Packard in his domination of your people. Yours truly,

FROM WINTERPORT

Musical Convention

The Waldo and Penobscot Musical Association held their second convention in the Town Hall at Monroe this week; conducted by Geo S Silsby The class numbered between one hundred and fifty and two hundred singers, coming from nearly all of the towns within a circuit of twenty miles from Monroe The attendance at the various sessions was large, there being more than four hundred persons present on Wednesday evening, filling the hall to overflowing, while scores of people were unable to get inside The generous hearted citizens of Monroe provided free entertainment for all visitors, and by their kindness and hospitality did much towards making the convention a decided success. The class was unusually well balanced, all of the parts being provided with excellent readers, who sang in fine time and tune, making the glees and choruses very effective

The were supported by a model piano and a large Smith organ tuned in unison and played together by Miss May Silsby of Winterport, and Minnie Coombs of Islesborough.

These conventions have two primary objects prominently in view—the cultivation and development of home talent, and to afford the singers frequent opportunities for consultation upon musical matters and for social reunion.

The following are the officers of the Association: Rev. A. N. Jones, President; R. A. Conant, Vice-President; Josiah Rigby, Secretary; David Libbey, Treasurer. The next convention will be held at White's Corner in Winterport.

Roots—Your Committee have attended to the duty assigned them and respectfully report as follows That they find great difficulty in coming to such decision and in making such awards as perhaps they should, or might do had all the competitors made specific entries or had written the variety and given the quantity of land thus cultivated upon the several cards attached with the exception of 3 instances, the Committee had no information as to the quantity of land appropriated

Besides the Committee were limited by the instructions from the Trustees, and did not feel at liberty to go behind them

For Potatoes, there were 7 competitors, the State College entering much the largest variety N Wilson and H H Page making each 4 entries, Eben Webster 3 These are each recommended to the Society as worthy of special notice.

And the single specimen of Irish Potatoes exhibited by a true son of Erin, Mr P Madden, is grown from seed brought to this country last spring was very fine.

But the State College have exhibited much the largest variety and quantity and in the judgment of the Committee are entitled to the 1st Premium for the best 1 acre of Potatoes, $3 00

Mr. Wilson Mr. Page, and Mr F Webster and Mr. J P Gibbs stood about even by balanced for the 2d best.

But the scale was turned in favor of Mr J P Gibbs and he is awarded the 2d best, of $2 00

For Carrots, 5 specimens only were exhibited and as no quantity was named and the specimens not of a superior order, the Committee decide to make no award.

For the best 1 acre of Mangel Wurtzel Beets there are 13 competitors, all good and many very fine. Those of Mr S Fesslee, Mr L Webster, Mr. Blackman and one or two others deserve special notice.

But the Committee decide to award the 1st premium to A. B. Sutton, of $3 00, and the 2d to J. P. Gibbs, of $2 00.

Table Beets For this there were 9 competitors, but the committee award the 1st premium of $3 00 to Mr. E. P. Ferguson, and the 2d best of $2 00 to Eben Webster

Turnips For this there were 8 competitors,—many fine specimens

But the committee award the 1st premium of $2.00 to Mr. Wm. R. Bartlett, and the 2d, of $1 50, to Mr. B. P. Gilman.

Squashes. This exhibition was very fine, the number of competitors 10. The exhibition by the State College, Mr. William H Colburn, Mr. H. H. Page, Mr. F. Rollins and some others were almost equally to be commended Those by Mr. Page, the largest in size, those by the State College and by Mr. Colburn, the better quality and more desirable for table use.

But finally, the committee have decided to award the first premium, of $2.00, to Mr. H H Page; and the 2d, of $1 00, to Mr. William H. Colburn

Garden Products.—For this there were a large number worthy of special notice.

The State College make a grand display and exhibit very much the largest and best variety, and your committee unanimously award to the State College the Society's premium of $5.00. For the 2d best, the contest was very close, and the number so evenly balanced as equally worthy, that your committee were obliged to examine and reexamine many times, and still the doubt remained.

Mrs. Gilman, Mr. F Webster Mr F Rollins, Mr. Ferguson and some others, making a most commendable exhibit; but finally tipped the scale in favor of Mr. F. Rollins, and award him the 2nd premium, of $3 00

The splendid Pumpkins exhibited by Mr. Gilman, Mr H K Robinson [illegible] Rollins and the mammoth [illegible] State College Mr. S. P[illegible] Ferguson were conspicuous [illegible]

In conclusion, your committee take great pleasure in congratulating the Society on the marked success of this special branch of their exhibition for the year 1877.

Needlework and embroidery In presenting the report on needle and fancy work the committee are aware of the impossibility of doing justice to the ladies, there being only two premiums given where so many are deserved, and as it would be unfair to the exhibitors to put all the kinds of needle and other fancy work under one head they have decided to make the awards as nearly as possible according to the wording of the premiums

For best variety of fancy and ornamental needle work 1st prem, Mrs S B Lovejoy 2d Mrs. J W Atwell

We wish there could be mention made of every thing deserving of reward and notice but to do this would be to repeat the list of entries Therefore instead of recommending gratuities for the various articles not included in the premiums we would extend thanks to all the ladies for their efforts to make the exhibition interesting and for their kindness in bringing so many beautiful pieces of handiwork for our examination

CATARRH.

Statement of O. J. Goldrick, Esq., Editor of Rocky Mountain Herald, Denver, Colorado, showing the Prevalence of Catarrh and the Popularity of Sanford's Radical Cure for Catarrh.

"Every one out of ten persons in this whole region of country is suffering with Catarrh. It seems to be climatic. All epidemic out in the atmosphere. My wife tells me that I ought to have a dozen bottles of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE here. I myself have derived the best benefit from its use. I have been troubled with Catarrh for years, and for one or another of the best three weeks, but had none here to supply from."

The Mr. whose reference is made is the Hon. Smith A. Doth, the mine owner. He says, when in London about a year ago he purchased eleven bottles of it, every bottle of which proved a complete RADICAL CURE. He had the same experience with a personal acquaintance. He had been the first named man who had not heard of the latter. Shortly after he arrived in Denver he was met by a leading druggist of the city, who informed him that another with the pleasing intelligence that Mr. Smith was cured. [Good results of the above are complied with the testimonials issued by the proprietors, as well as the many voluntary letters of thanks, nearly three hundred in all, we have seen sent out. The most striking illustration of what it does, and is daily doing, is the return to perfect health of a long afflicted husband.

CATARRH,

Asthma, Bad Cough, etc., cured.

Gentlemen,—My wife has for six years been afflicted with Catarrh, for two years each year with increasing severity. Everything which the afflicted through one month. Thank Providence, there is every hope, humanly speaking, that she will be able to take a journey in the spring. She has been in the habit of sleeping and has not been able to lie down in bed. My head was at the age I did not catarrh in order to enjoy my senses. The ringing and peculiar noises in the head, and the stoppage of the nose, are distressing symptoms. I could enjoy every one of these distressing symptoms as described, after the use of only one bottle of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE. Its effects are truly wonderful. I have not had an asthmatic symptom, no cough, no keeping down in the throat, no hacking, and discovery was the greatest I have had for years. The effect of the CURE on my system, so far as I know and believe, every part of my system. What has been done in my case is wholly the effect of the RADICAL CURE.

Very respectfully,
C. H. LAWRENCE.

Fitchburg, Oct 11.

Endorsed by a Prominent Druggist.

I hereby certify that Mr. Lawrence is well known to the Hon. Levi K. Fuller, and from time to time I have made me familiar with his case, I believe the statement to be true in every particular.

JAS. P. DERBY

Fitchburg, Oct 11

The above several cases was a combination of Catarrh and Asthma, with bad cough, constant tendency to clear the throat, each of which might be the subject of intelligent physicians, to treat any particular, where as they were it is a variety of forms assumed by one prevailing cause, and the same remedy for the effect of the Cure. In every part of the system. This statement shows that less remedy acts upon the cause of Catarrh, viz., Purifying the blood, from which source every vestige and symptom of Catarrh disappears from the system only by the RADICAL CURE.

Each package contains Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for its use. Price $1.00. For sale by all Wholesale and Retail Druggists throughout the United States and Canadas. WEEKS & POTTER, General Agents for Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.
